

EMC Documentum Solutions for Collaborative Processes

The Big Picture

- Enables improved knowledge worker productivity providing secure information workplaces to create, locate, and publish information
- Connects distributed teams and facilitates decision making
- Provides a single, easy-to-use, highly configurable workspace that manages project work, improves client service delivery, and enables project milestones accomplishment

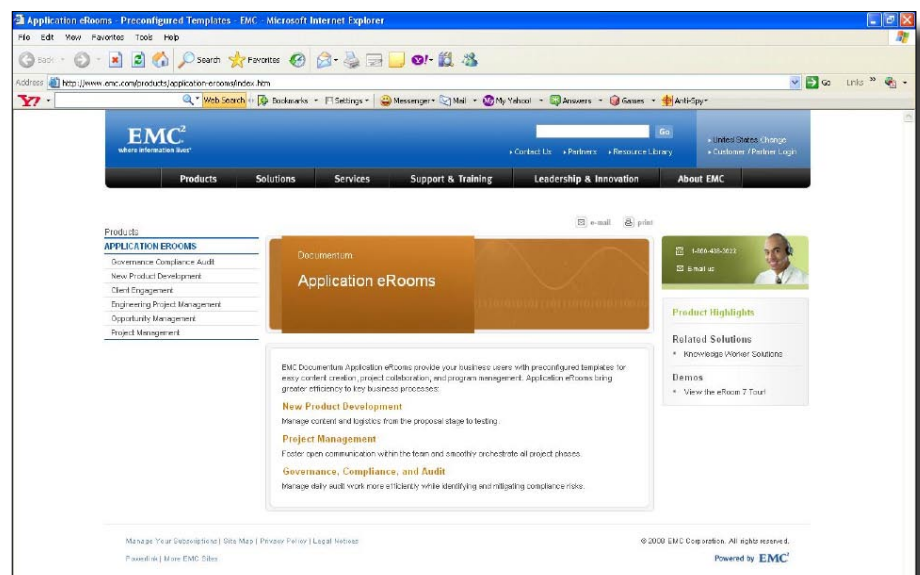

Facilitate secure collaboration across global business ecosystems

EMC[®] Documentum[®] content-enabled solutions for collaborative processes such as client engagement, product development, project management, and legal collaboration provide secure information workplaces to create, share, and distribute information freely inside and outside the firewall. They are specifically designed for knowledge workers who interact with a wide variety of information, processes, and teams—both internally and externally.

These solutions empower knowledge workers by enhancing decision making, extending processes to external parties, and connecting distributed teams to accomplish project milestones. They are tailored to address specific business problems and can be used across many industries.

EMC Documentum solution for product development

The EMC Documentum solution for product development combines three critical elements for managing distributed product development teams: virtual project workspaces, a global content repository, and business process support. This combination enables you to capture and retain valuable product data throughout the development lifecycle.

Secure, virtual workplaces connect dispersed global teams.

The solution allows you to create flexible workspace templates to enforce best practices and connect distributed teams. And, you can track progress across multiple projects via enterprise database rollups, dashboards, and reporting tools, enabling you to accomplish project milestones in a timely manner. The product development solution enables you to:

- Implement phase-gate processes to manage collaboration activities during the early phases of the product development process
- Accelerate prototype development by providing participants with input and visibility throughout the entire process
- Connect with suppliers and outside participants from the very beginning of the product development process to jointly plan and resolve issues

EMC Documentum solution for client engagement

The EMC Documentum solution for client engagement provides a secure, centralized, web-based workspace that enables global collaboration across multiple enterprises. With our client engagement solution you can extend processes to external participants—tracking milestones, resolving issues, and giving clients visibility into processes from project launch to completion. As a result, you increase throughput of delivery teams, exceed client expectations, and drive new engagement opportunities. The solution enables:

- Secure collaboration inside and outside the firewall
- Faster consensus and easier decision making
- A high-touch, highly visible service experience—tracking key milestones and issue resolution, and obtaining client approvals

EMC Documentum solution for project management

The EMC Documentum solution for project management unites project scheduling and execution in a single, secure workspace to execute projects more efficiently and effectively. The solution is designed to address the requirements of both PMOs and project team members. With a web-based scheduling engine and a collaborative workspace, you can manage project timelines within the work environment team members utilize to complete their tasks and deliverables. The solution enables you to:

- Connect internal and external participants to drive consensus on project milestones
- Create a contextual workspace to aggregate project content and information
- Track project communications and milestones, aggregating information that is typically scattered across desktops, e-mail systems, and file systems
- Provide overall program management visibility with the ability to drill down to project details
- Develop project-specific workspace templates to standardize methodologies and facilitate rapid project initiation

EMC Documentum solution for legal collaboration

The EMC Documentum solution for legal collaboration provides a secure, centralized collaboration workspace for lawyers and their clients to handle all the activities associated with case management—from the administration of contracts to project scheduling to collaboration and document management.

The legal collaboration solution is specifically designed to address the information management challenges faced by law firms and their clients where there are a number of parties involved such as the client, the client's attorney and legal staff, and other legal firms serving as co-counsel; where there is a staggering amount and variety of supporting documentation; and where cases often take years and require exchanging information and working together over different time zones. With the legal collaboration solution, you can:

- Leverage one easy, secure, and centralized collaboration workspace for globally dispersed internal and external project teams
- Provide visibility across large, complex legal cases—for example those involving Fortune 1000 companies and multiple and globally-located law firms
- Prevent information leaks of confidential documents with information rights management capabilities
- Facilitate tracking of contract renewal and termination dates and reduce the risk of dates slipping or lost revenue
